By combining the how-to of coding with the discoveries of astronomy, we've developed a program that can tap into the best of both worlds. With this activity, we can enable others to tell a story about something in the Universe. The aim is to help show that computing does not end with computers, but extends much further into real world applications.

Programming the Universe: A Quantum Computer Scientist Takes On the Cosmos is a 2006 popular science book by Seth Lloyd, professor of mechanical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The book proposes that the universe is a quantum computer, and advances in the understanding of physics may come from viewing entropy as a phenomenon of information, rather than simply thermodynamics. Lloyd also postulates that the universe can be fully simulated using a quantum computer; however
